COLUMBIA'S BIRTHDAY.

All America Does Honor to the Quadri-Centennial Anniversary of the Discovery.

Chicago Appropriately Leads the Whole Country in the General Jubilation.

Processions, Vast Multitudes and More Than the Usual Amount of Enthusiasm.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The parade inaugurated the exercises of the day. Cannon boomed at daybreak; the national salute on the nation's holiday startling a tired million or two from their slumbers to the fact that the festivities of yesterday were but things that are past, and that the crowning event of the celebration was yet to come. Day had barely dawned when Michigan Avenue, from the Auditorium southward to Jackson Park, a distance of over seven miles, commenced to be fringed on both sides with men and women. Each moment added its quota to early risers up town and down town. After 9 o'clock the order was given for the head of the column to move. The escorting military comprised three batteries of artillery from Fort Riley, Major Randoph commanding; one from Fort Sheridan, four companies of the Fifth and Sixth cavalry, U.S.A. After the military procession carriages with occupants moved in the following order. The carriage allotted to the Vice-President was not occupied until it reached the Higginbotham mansion at 24th street and Michigan Avenue, at which point the Vice-President, amidst a salvo of cheers from the crowds that banked the four corners of the thoroughfare, was escorted to the vehicle. Director-General Davis accompanied by Gen. J. R. Hamley, President of Centennial in 1876, and Gen. Coshorn. Vice President Morton was accompanied by President T. W. Palmer of the National committee, and President H. N. Higginbotham of the directory.

The vice-presidential carriage was drawn by four white horses, ridden by postilions in scarlet. The overdoors of the carriage were draped with two of the finest flags ever made, which came a few days ago from the manufactory of a Philadelphia firm, at a cost of $500. One was the national flag, with four stars and the other an infantry stand of colors, a blue ground with a coat of arms of the United States; in the centre of the coat of arms was embroidered in natural colors an eagle with a shield on his breast and the motto "E Pluribus Unum" hanging from his beak.

After the Vice-President's carriage came vehicles in the following order: Secretary of State and Secretary of the Treasury, accompanied by M. P. De Young, First Vice-President of National committee, and vice-President W. F. Peck of the directory. Hon. Steven B. Elkins, Secretary of War, and Hon. W. H. Miller, Attorney-General, Hon. John Wannamaker, Postmaster-General; Hon. Benjamin F. Tracy, Secretary of the Navy; Hon. Jno. W. Noble, Secretary of the Interior; Hon. Jeremiah Rusk, Secretary of Agriculture, all occupying one carriage. Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of U. S. Supreme; Justices Blatchford and Shrieras, Supreme Court Justices Brown, Harlan and Badley; ex-Secretory of State Bayard, accompanied by ex-President Baker of the World's Columbian exposition; ex-Pres. Hayes, accompanied by ex-President Gage of the exposition. The Governors and their staffs of all the States and Territories; Bishop Chas. H. Fowler of California; His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons, Rev. H. H. McCoon of the First Prebyterian Church of Philadelphia; Hon. Chauncy M. Depew of New York and Hy. Waterson of Kentucky; Miss Harriett Monroe of Chicago, Mrs. Sarah C. Lemoyne, reader of the poem; commissioners of foreign governments to the World's Columbian exposition. The World's Columbian Fair commissioners, board of directors of the World's Fair, the city Council of Chicago. From 29th street the procession moved south on Michigan avenue and via 15th street, Grand street and thence to Washington park. The occupants of every carriage were greeted with a volley of cheers as block after block was traversed. At Washington park a halt was made while the U. S. troops and visiting militia displayed themselves before the vice-presidential carriage. U. S. soldiers numbering some four thousand commanded by Brigadier General Carr. In the front rank was the Seventh cavalry, General Custer's regiment. The vice-presidental salute was fired upon the approach of the carriage occupied by the vice-president, and after the review, which was considerable curtailed from the programme, the troops took up a position at the head of the line and the procession moved again to the exposition grounds, entering in rear of the Women's building. Here the military, of whom there were 15,000, left the line proper and the guests proceeded to the Transportation building, where a hurried lunch was served. Two hundred thousand ham and cheese sandwiches and almost as many buttered rolls, to say nothing of tens of thousands of plates of salad, and coffee to a total of some 5000 gallons, disappeared like chaff before the wind. When the inner man was thus appeased the line of march was resumed to the building of Manufactures and Liberal Arts. Here seats were provided for 100,000 participants. Every chair had an occupant and an immense crowd variously estimated at from 10,000 to 15,000 was fain to be content with standing room. The guests who participated in the procession were escorted to seats upon the platform with the utmost dispatch. Vice-President Morton was seated directly in front of Senator Palmer, to the right of President Higginbotham. On the left were Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Ireland, Bishop Fowler, Mayor Washburne, Henry Watterson and Chauncey M. Depew. Occupying seats on either side, to the east and west, upon the same platform, were seated members of the Cabinet, diplomatic corps, judges of the Supreme Court, governors of States, and other distinguished guests.

Mind cannot conceive or pencil describe the scene that was presented when last of these that had participated in the parade were seated. On the platform were representatives of every civilized country in the globe, before them the largest audience ever assembled since the day upon which the Creator said "Let their be light." Little time was occupied in preliminaries Without witing for a signal the orchestra broke forth with the opening strains of the Columbia March, arousing the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

As the strains of music died away, Bishop Charles H. Fowler of California, one of the most eminent divines of the Methodist church, arose in his place. The immense audience which stretched back almost as far as the eye could reach followed his example, and stood with bowed heads and hands clasped while the eminent divine gave thanks to the Almighty for what had already been accomplished, and besought the blessing of the great Ruler of all upon what remained to be done. A hundred and fifty thousand throats voiced a fervent amen as the bishop resumed his seat.

The task of making the formal announcement that the work of preparing the buildings and grounds had been completed was then performed. President Palmer responded; a round of applause greeted the conclusion of this address. The enthusiasm grew into a tumult when Mr. Morton was introduced to dedicate the buildings on behalf of the United States. The conclusion of his address was the signal for loud and long continued applause, and when the Vice-President stepped forward to bow his thanks, one-eighth of a million men, women ann children rose to their feet and gave him a salvo of applause that he is likely to remember as long as he lives. The Hallelujah chorus from the Messiah was rendered at this point. A good old-fashioned reception of cordiality was tendered to Henry Watterson when he came to the front of the stage to deliver his address. When the eminent Kentuckian resumed his seat and the applause that greeted his peroration had subsided the choir rendered the "Star Spangled Banner" and "Hail Columbia" with orchestral accompaniments.

Hon. Geo. R. Davis, Director-General, was received with a burst of applause that went up to the roof of the structure and reverberated as from the firing of cannon in the distance. The General then spoke, and a hearty welcome was extended in behalf of the citizens of Chicago by Mayor Hempstead Washburn, in a neat speech. The remarks of Chicago's Mayor evoked unbanded enthusiasm on part of those within hearing distance.

Chivalry dictated a warm reception to Mrs. Sarah C. Lemoyne, who read a portion of the Columbian Ode, written by Miss Harriet Monroe. The reading was interpersed with choral selections of the ode by a chorus of five thousand voices. Mrs. Potter Palmer made a brief address on the part of the board of lady managers, and President Higginbotham then tendered the buildings on behalf of the exposition to President Palmer of the Columbian committee.

This incentive to a patriotic outburst was not needed to serve as an introduction to the next speaker, for when "the only" Chauncey M. Depew stepped forward the audience went into ecstasies and would not be quieted. Comparative silence was at last restored. The national orator, with a smile, began his address. The oration was repeatedly interrupted with applause, and when it was concluded three cheers were called for and responded to by all of those within hearing.

After this the chorus rendered Beethoven's "In praise of God." Cardinal Gibbons then arose, and with a wave of his hand every head was bowed, while the prelate delivered himself of a fervent supplication. After this there was more music. The audience, which had been remarkably still and patient, began to manifest tokens of fatigue at this point, and an exodus from the south end door was commenced. The exercises, however, were nearly over. The blessing was pronounced by Rev. Dr. A. P. McCook of the First Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, and almost before his closing words died away, the band struck up the familiar strain of "God Save the Queen," or as it is called in the United States, "America," and the audience joined in the second stanza.

In the Coal Regions.

WILKSBERRE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Columbus day was celebrated here with a large demonstration which began at six o'clock this morning. At that hour ten thousand people gathered on the banks of the river to witness the "Landing of Columbus" scene presented. It was an effective one. Members of the ancient order of Red Men acted as the Indians, while Father McAndrews planted the cross. At 10 a.m. there will be a parade of the children of the public school; 15,000 men will participate.

BARON VON BRANDENSTEIN.

Romantic Career and Miserable End of a German Soldier-Diplomatist.

Actor Nat Goodwin Plays Faro—Cholera and Diphtheria in Michigan.

Dr. Briggs to be Let Alone—Krupp Essen's Gun Founder After Labrador Iron.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—There lay dead in the morgue yesterday a man who had been picked up unconscious on the previous day and had succumbed to heart disease within a few hours after his admission to Bellevue Hospital. He was an ill-dressed, elderly man, and all that the hospital attendants could learn about him was that his name was Adolf Brandt. He seemed to have no friens and no notice might have been taken of his death had not a hard-working German, who knew him in youth, chanced to recognize him as being a member of one of the noblest families in Germany. According to this man Adolf Brandt's full name was Edgar Adolf, Baron Von Brandenstein, and he came of a race which is not only distinguished for its nobility, but also for its wealth. At the age of seventeen he graduated from the Gymnasium of Ulm, and then, after spending two years at the universities of Bonn and Heidelberg, joined a cavalry regiment and soon attained high rank as an officer. He attracted attention at the court of Berlin, and, joining the diplomatic service, was sent to the embassy at Rome, where he became one of the recognized leaders of fashion. At a ball one night he made the acquaintance of Lady Harriett Berkley, daughter of a British diplomatist, and fell in love with her. She reciprocated his love, and when he proposed she readily accepted him, heedless of her father's prophesy that the flighty young German would never make a good husband. Her father knew that the Baron was a reckless gambler, and Lady Harriet also soon learned the bitter truth. In official circles his extravagance had become known, and the result was that he was suddenly ordered to rejoin his regiment. This order he did not obey, military discipline had become irksome to him, and he quit the service. He appealed to his father for money, but the old man refused to aid him. Lady Harriet offered him her entire fortune, but prudence compelled him to refuse. Nothing then was left him but to disappear, and he disappeared. Under an assumed name he came to this city, determined to begin life anew. Though well educated he found it impossible to obtain a remunerative position, and he had neither the calibre nor the tact to adapt himself to the ways of the new world. As a result he became disheartened and began to drink heavily. Whenever he earned a little money, which was very seldom, he spent it on whiskey, and when he had no money he begged for it until he had the price of a drink. In this way, sleeping in cheap lodging houses and drinking himself to death, the last days of Edgar Adolf, Baron Von Brandenstein, were spent.

Nat Goodwin's Good Luck.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—Nat Goodwin, the actor, won $5,100 at faro here yesterday. He began playing soon after midnight and did not quit the game till afternoon. Goodwin went out with a party of friends soon after the curtain had been rung down on the "Gilded Fool." He had supper and then they decided to "buck the tiger." They went to a gambling room conducted by Whempoa and Boardman, and Goodwin sat down to play. Luck varied with him, and after betting steadily with changing success until nearly daylight he began plunging. People left the other tables and crowded around him. Luck ran against him until the bank was ahead $2,000. Goodwin was plucky, however, and the tide turned again, when he got $2,000. Goodwin cashed his way, and whatever play he made he won. There was hardly an interruption to his winnings until at last he cashed $2,100 more of chips and rose. The dealer congratulated him, and with his big roll of money the comedian left the place. When here two years ago Goodwin lost three thousand dollars one sitting.

A Chinaman was to-day sentenced to two months for picking up $5 on the street and refusing to return it to the owner.

The difficulty with the printers will probably be settled this afternoon by arbitration. The new scale of prices, is $26 for night foremen, not $29; $23 is the new figure for "ad" men. The compositors claim the new scale is more definite and will prevent disputes with the office rather than increase the cost of publication. The News-Advertiser appeared this morning as usual, and the Telegram as a four-page paper; the offices paying the new scale under protest, pending a settlement of the difficulty.

The seizure of the Iona will complicate the financial crisis which has reached some time ago in the B. C. Fishing and Trading Company, to which she belonged. She was mortgaged to the B.C. Iron Works for $4000, while T. W. Clark, president of the company, took a chattel mortgage on the rest for $1500, advanced to the company above the price of stock. There was accrued interest on the mortgage to the amount of $50. The new proprietors paid this interest and assumed the indebtedness on the steamer. James James had a claim for wages as engineer, amounting to $350, but a settlement had been promised him before the steamer would be sold, consequently he delayed legal proceedings. He had been drinking and on the night of September 29th, while making his way to the steamer claims he was sandbagged. He was found in a bad state under the the C. P. R. piling near the wharf at the station, nearly dead. He has been unable to leave bed since. During his illness the Iona left, clearing coastwise on Oct. 7th, with Capt. Mayne in command. The new proprietors took away James' certificate as engineer, also his clothes and bedding which were aboard. It was rumored here she had gone on a contraband mission.

MADE A MULL OF IT.

The Intelligent Bobbies of the Royal City on the Todhunter Case—The New Paper.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 21.—It is said on what appears to be good authority that a thorough mull has been made of the May Todhunter case in the arrest of the Beagans by police officers up country, and by their allowing them out of sight, enabling them to get rid of the murdered woman's jewelry. Governor Moresby never had anything to do with the case, being in the Interior on other business. It is stated that the very facts now laid bare were positively known by a member of the Westminster police force, who told the chief of police and was pooh-poohed for his pains. This case affords a sample of Westminster's splendid police force work.

The following Rugby team will play against Vancouver to-morrow at Brockton Point: Goal, McLaren; three quarters, Rev. P. Woods, Morrison, Applegarth; half, E. M. N. Woods and Rev. Tovey; forwards, McMartin, Malins, Bell, Hodge, Forin, Brown, Bowman, Lister and Roberts.

Two Chinaman, Ah Lee and Ah Kipp, were sentenced to six months this morning on a charge of the theft of a large quantity of grate bars from the Brunette mill.

The new morning paper, the Daily Post, will not make its first appearance, if at all, till December. From all that can be learned from the Printers' Co-operative Society, who will run it, the organ will receive government pap.

A Real Estate Rook Removes a Few Feathers—Social Notes.

NANAIMO, Oct. 21.—W. H. McCutcheon, a real estate agent is anxiously sought after by a young fellow who too confidingly trusted funds to the amount of $80 to him on the supposed purchase of a lot in English Bay. The agent told a plausible story of having a "soft snap" for sale and worked upon the credulity of his victim by informing him, that a client of his had a lot for sale there, and for $100 cash down he could gain possession of it, the residue could be paid in monthly installments of $20. The young man had only $80 in cash, which he cheerfully parted with in the expectation of getting a good thing. He has since discovered that McCutcheon was not acting in good faith, but has gone east with his $80. The matter is now in the hands of the police.

THE MEMORY OF COLUMBUS.

Orator Chauncey M. Depew Discourses on the Great Discoverer at Chicago.

The Consequences That Flowed From the Adventurous Voyage — America and the World.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—At the Columbus celebration to-day Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, the orator of the day, spoke as follows:—

This day belongs not to America, but to the world. The results of the event it commemorates are the heritage of the peoples of every race and clime. We celebrate the emancipation of man. The preparation was the work of almost countless centuries, the realization was the revelation of one. The cross on Calvary was hope; the cross raised on San Salvador was opportunity. But for the first, Columbus would never have sailed, but for the second, there would have been no place for the planting, the nurture and the expansion of civil and religious liberty. Ancient history is a dreary record of unstable civilizations. Each reached the zenith of material splendor, and perished. The Assyrian, Persian, Egyptian, Grecian and Roman empires were proofs of the possibilities and limitations of man for conquest and intellectual development. Their destruction involved a sum of misery and relapse which made their creation rather a curse than a blessing. Force was the factor in the government of the world when Christ was born, and force was the sole source and exercise of authority both by Church and State when Columbus sailed from Palos. The Wise Men travelled from the East towards the West under the guidance of the Star of Bethlehem. The spirit of the equality of all men before God and the law, moved westward from Calvary with its revolutionary influence upon old institutions, to the Atlantic Ocean. Columbus carried it westward across the seas. The emigrants from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, from Germany and Holland, from Sweden and Denmark, from France and Italy, have, under its guidance and inspiration, moved west, and again west, building states and founding cities until the Pacific limited their march. The Exhibition of arts and sciences, of industries and inventions, of education and civilization, which the Republic of the United States will here present, and to which, through its Chief Magistrate, it invites all nations, condenses and displays the flower and fruitage of this transcendent miracle.

Neither realism nor romance furnishes a more striking and picturesque figure than that of Christopher Columbus. The mystery about his origin heightens the charm of his story. That he came from among the toilers of his time is in harmony with the struggles of our period. Forty-four authentic portraits of him have descended to us, and no two of them are the counterfeits of the same person. Each represents a character as distinct as its canvas. Strength and weakness, intellectuality and stupidity, high moral purpose and brutal ferocity, purity and licentiousness, the dreamer and the miser, the pirate and the puritan, are the types from which we may select our hero. We dismiss the painter, and piercing with the clarified vision of the dawn of the twentieth century the veil of four hundred years, we construct our Columbus. The perils of the sea in his youth upon the rich argosies of Genoa, or in the service of the licensed rovers who made them their prey, had developed a skillful navigator and intrepid mariner. They had given him a glimpse of the possibilities of the unknown, beyond the highways of travel, which roused an unquenchable thirst for adventure and research. The study of the narratives of previous explorers, and diligent questions of the daring spirits who had ventured far towards the fabled West, gradually evolved a theory, which became in his mind so fixed a fact, that he could inspire others with his own passionate beliefs. The words, "that is a lie," written by him on the margin of nearly every page of a volume of the travels of Marco Polo, which is still to be found in a Genoese library, illustrates the scepticism of his beginning, and the first vision of the New World the fulfilment of his faith.

To secure the means to test the truth of his speculations, this poor and unknown dreamer, must win the support of kings and overcome the hostility of the Church. He never doubted his ability to do both, though he knew of no man living who was so great in power, or lineage, or learning that he could accomplish either. Unaided and alone he succeeded in arousing the jealousies of sovereigns, and dividing the councils of the ecclesiastics. "I will command your fleet and discover for you new realms, but only on condition that you confer on me hereditary nobility, the Admiralty of the Ocean, and the Vice Royalty and one-tenth the revenues of the New World," were his haughty terms to King John of Portugal. After ten years of disappointment and poverty, subsisting most of the time upon the charity of the enlightened monk of the Convent of Ribida, who was his unfaltering friend, he stood before the throne of Ferdinand and Isabella, and rising to imperial dignity in his rags, embodied the same royal conditions in his petition. The capture of Granada, the expulsion of Islam from Europe, and the triumph of the Cross, aroused the admiration and devotion of Christendom. But this proud beggar, holding in his grasp the potential promise, and dominion of El Dorado and Cathay, divided with the Moslem surrender, the attention of sovereigns and bishops. France and England indicated a desire to hear his theories and see his maps, while he was still a suppliant at the gates of the camp of Castile and Aragon, the sport of its courtiers and the scoff of its professors. His unshakable faith, that Christopher Columbus was commissioned from Heaven, took by his name and by Divine command to carry "Christ across the sea" to new continents and pagan peoples, lifted him so far above the discouragements of an empty purse and a contemptuous court that he was proof against the rebuffs of fortune and of friends. To conquer the prejudices of the clergy, to win the approval and financial support of the State, to venture upon that unknown ocean, which, according to the beliefs of the age, was peopled with demons and savage beasts of frightful shape, and from which there was no possibility of return, required the zeal of Peter the Hermit, the chivalrous courage of the Cid, and the imagination of Dante. Columbus belonged to that high order of cranks who confidently walk where "angels fear to tread," and often become the benefactors of their country or their kind.

It was a happy omen of the position which woman was to hold in America, that the only person who comprehended the majestic scope of his plans, and the invincible quality of his genius, was the able and gracious Queen of Castile. Isabella alone of all the dignitaries of that age, shares with Columbus the honors of his great achievement. She arrayed her kingdom and her private fortune behind the enthusiasm of this mystic mariner, and posterity pays homage to her wisdom and faith.

The mighty soul of the great Admiral was undaunted by the ingratitude of princes, and the hostility of the people, by imprisonment and neglect. He died as he was securing the means and preparing a campaign for the rescue of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem from the infidel. He did not know what time has revealed, that while the mission of the crusades, of Godfrey of Bouillon and Richard of the Lion Heart was a bloody and fruitless romance, the discovery of America was the salvation of the world. The one was the symbol, the other the spirit; the one death, the other life. The tomb of the Saviour was a narrow and empty vault, precious only for its memories of the supreme tragedy of the centuries, but the new continent was to be the home and temple of the living God.

The rulers of the Old World began with partitioning the New. To them the discovery was expansion of Empire, and grandeur to the throne. Vast territories, whose properties and possibilities were little understood, and whose extent was greater than the kingdoms of the sovereigns, where the gifts of court favorites, and the prizes of royal approval. But individual intelligence and independent conscience found here haven and refuge. They were the passengers upon the carvels of Columbus, and he was unconsciously making for the port of civil and religious liberty. Thinkers, who believed men capable of higher destinies and larger responsibilities, and pious people who preferred the Bible to that union of Church and State where each serves the other for the temporal benefit of both, fled to these distant and hospitable lands from intolerable and hopeless oppression at home. It required three hundred years, for the people thus happily situated, to understand their own powers and resources, and to break bonds which were still reverenced, or loved no matter how deeply they wounded, or how hard they galled.

The nations of Europe were so completely absorbed in dynastic difficulties, and devastating wars, with diplomacy and ambitions, that they neither heeded nor heard of the growing democratic spirit and intelligence of their American Colonies. To them, these provinces were sources of revenue, and they never dreamed that they were also schools of liberty. That it exhausted three centuries under the most favorable conditions for the evolution of freedom on this Continent, demonstrates the tremendous strength of custom and heredity when sanctioned and sanctified by religion. The very chains which fettered, became inextricably interwoven with the habits of life, the associations of childhood, the tenderest ties of the family, and the sacred offices of the Church from the cradle to the grave. It clearly proves that if the people of the old world and their descendants, had not possessed the opportunities afforded by the new for their emancipation, and mankind had never experienced and learned the American example, instead of living in the light and glory of nineteenth century conditions, they would still be struggling with mediæval problems.

The northern continent was divided between England, France and Spain, and the southern between Spain and Portugal. France wanting the capacity for colonization, which still characterizes her, gave up her western possessions and left the English, who have the genius of universal empire, masters of North America. The development of the experiment in the English domain makes this day memorable. It is due to the wisdom and courage, the faith and virtue of the inhabitants of this territory that government of the people, for the people and by the people was inaugurated, and has become a triumphant success. The Puritan settled in New England and the Cavalier in the South. They represented the opposites of spiritual and temporal life and opinions. The processes of liberty liberalized the one and elevated the other. Washington and Adams were the new types. Their union in a common cause gave the world a Republic both stable and free. It possessed conservatism without bigotry, and liberty without license. It founded institutions strong enough to resist revolution, and elastic enough for indefinite extension to meet the requirements in government of ever enlarging areas of population, and the needs of progress and growth.

The Mayflower, with the Pilgrims, and a Dutch ship laden with African slaves, were on the ocean at the same time, the one sailing for Massachusetts, and the other for Virginia. This company of saints, and first cargo of slaves, represented the forces which were to peril and rescue free government. The slaver was the product of the commercial spirit of Great Britain, and the greed of the times to stimulate production in the colonies. The men who wrote in the cabin of the Mayflower the first charter of freedom, a government of just and equal laws, were a little band of protestants against every form of injustice and tyranny. The leaven of the principles made possible the Declaration of Independence, liberated the slaves and founded the free commonwealths which form the Republic of the United States.

Platforms of principles, by petition, or protest, or statement, have been as frequent as revolts against established authority. They are part of the political literature of all nations. The Declaration of Independence proclaimed at Philadelphia, July 4th, 1776, is the only one of them which arrested the attention of the world when it was published, and has held its undivided interest ever since. The vocabulary of the equality of man had been in familiar use by philosophers and statesmen for ages. It expressed noble sentiments, but their application was limited to classes or conditions. The masses cared little for them nor remembered them long. Jefferson's superb crystallization of the popular opinion, that "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," had its force and effect in being the deliberate utterance of the people. It swept away in a single setence kings and nobles, peers and prelates. It was Magna Charta, and the Petition of Rights planted in the virgin soil of the American wilderness, and bearing richer and riper fruit. Under its vitalizing influence upon the individual, the farmer left his plow in the furrow, the lawyer his books and briefs, the merchant his shop and the workman his bench to enlist in the patriot army. They were fighting for themselves and their children. They embodied the idea in their constitution, in the immortal words with which the great instrument of liberty and order began: "We, the people of the United States, do ordain."

The scope and limitations of this idea of freedom have neither been misinterpreted nor misunderstood. The laws of nature in their application to the rise and recognition of men according to their mental, moral, spiritual and physical endowments are left undisturbed. But the accident of birth gives no rank and confers no privilege. Equal rights and common opportunity for all have been the spurs of ambition and the motors of progress. They have established the common schools and built the public libraries. A sovereign people have learned and enforced the lesson of free education. People who make their own laws, need no law-givers. After a century of successful trial, the system has passed the period of experiment, and its demonstrated permanency and power are revolutionizing the governments of the world. It has raised the largest armies in modern times for self preservation, and at the successful termination of the war returned the soldiers to the pursuits of peace. It has so adjusted itself to the pride and patriotism of the defeated, that they vie with the victors in their support and enthusiasm for the old flag and our common country. Imported anarchists have preached their baleful doctrines, but have made no converts. They have tried to inaugurate a reign of terror under the banner of the violent seizure and distribution of property only to be defeated, imprisoned and executed by the law made by the people and enforced by the juries selected from the people, and judges and prosecuting officers elected by the people. Socialism finds disciples only among those who were its votaries before they were forced to fly from their native land, but it does not take root upon American soil. The State neither supports nor permits taxation to maintain the church. The citizen can worship God according to his belief and conscience, or he may neither reverence nor recognize the Almighty. And yet religion has flourished, churches abound, the ministry is sustained, and millions of dollars are contributed annually for the evangelization of the world. The United States is a Christian country and a living and practical Christianity is the characteristic of its people.

Benjamin Franklin, philosopher and patriot, amused the jaded courtiers of Louis XIV., by his talks about liberty, and entertained the scientists of France by bringing lightning from the clouds. In the reckoning of time, the period from Franklin to Morse, and from Morse to Edison is but a span, and yet it marks a material development as marvellous as it has been beneficent. The world has been brought into contact and sympathy. The electric current thrills and unifies the people of the globe. Power and production, highways and transports have been so multiplied and improved by inventive genius, that within the century of our Independence sixty-four millions of people have happy homes and improved conditions within our borders. We have accumulated wealth far beyond the visions of the Cathay of Columbus, or the El Dorado of De Soto. But the farmers and freeholders, the savings banks and shops illustrate its universal distribution. The majority are its possessors and administrators. In housing and living, in the elements which make the toiler a self-respecting and respected citizen, in avenues of hope and ambition for children, in all that gives broader scope and keener pleasure to existence, the people of this Republic enjoy advantages far beyond those of other lands. The unequalled, the phenomenal progress of the country has opened wonderful opportunities for making fortunes, and stimulated to madness the desire and rush for the accumulation of money. Material prosperity has not debased literature nor debauched the press; it has neither paralyzed nor repressed intellectual activity. American science and letters have received rank and recognition in the older centres of learning. The demand for higher education has so taxed the resources of the ancient universities, as to compel the foundation and liberal endowment of colleges all over the Union. Journals, remarkable for their ability, independence and power, find their strength, not in the patronage of government, or the subsidies of wealth, but in the support of a nation of newspaper readers. The humblest and poorest person, has in periodicals whose price is counted in pennies, a library larger, fuller and more varied, than was within the reach of the rich in the time of Columbus.

The sum of happiness has been infinitely increased by the millions from the Old World who have improved their conditions in the New, and the returning tide of lesson and experience has incalculably enriched the Fatherlands. The divine right of kings has taken its place with the instruments of mediæval torture among the curiosities of the antiquary. Only the shadow of kingly authority stands between the government of themselves, by themselves, and the people of Norway and Sweden. The union in one Empire of States of Germany, is the symbol of Teutonic power and the hope of German liberalism. The petty despotisms of Italy have been merged into a nationality which has centralized its authority in its ancient capitol on the hills of Rome. France was rudely roused from the sullen submission of centuries to intolerable tyranny, by her soldiers returning from service in the American revolution. The wild orgies of the reign of terror were the revenges and excesses of a people, who had discovered their power, but were not prepared for its beneficent use. She fled from herself into the arms of Napoleon. He too was the product of the American experiment. He played with kings as with toys, and educated France for liberty. In the processes of her evolution from darkness to light, she tried Bourbon, and Orleanist and the third Napoleon and cast them aside. Now is the fullness of time, and through the training in the school of hardest experience, the French people have reared and enjoy a permanent Republic. England of the Mayflower, and of James the Second, England of George the Third and of Lord North, has enlarged suffrage and is to-day animated and governed by the democratic spirit. She has her throne, admirably occupied by one of the wisest of sovereigns and best of women, but it would not survive one dissolute and unworthy successor. She has her hereditary Peers, but the House of Lords will be brushed aside the moment it resists the will of the people

The time has arrived for both a closer union, and greater distance between the Old World and the New. The former indiscriminate welcome to our prairies, and the present invitation to these palaces of art and industry, mark the passing period. Unwatched and unhealthy immigration can no longer be permitted to our shores. We must have a natural quarantine against disease, pauperism and crime. We do not want candidates for our hospitals, our poor houses or our jails. We cannot admit those who come to undermine our institutions, and subvert our law. But we will gladly throw wide our gates for, and receive with open arms, those who by intelligence and virtue, by thrift and loyalty, are worthy of receiving the equal advantages of the priceless gift of American citizenship. The spirit and object of this exhibition are peace and kinship.

Edmund Burke, speaking in the British Parliament with prophetic voice, said: "A great revolution has happened—a revolution made, not by chopping and changing of power in any of the existing States, but by the appearance of a new State, of a new species, in a new part of the globe. It has made as great a change in all the relations and balances and gravitations of power as the appearance of a new planet would in the system of the solar world." Thus was the humiliation of our successful revolt tempered to the motherland by pride in the State created by her children. If we claim heritage in Bacon, Shakespeare and Milton, we also acknowledge that it was for liberties guaranteed Englishmen by sacred charters, our fathers triumphantly fought. While wisely rejecting throne and caste and privilege and an Established Church in their new-born state, they adopted the substance of English liberty and the body of English law. Closer relations than with other lands, and a common language rendering easy interchanges of criticism and epithet, sometimes irritate and offend, but the heart of republican America beats with responsive pulsations to the hopes and aspirations of the people of Great Britain.

The grandeur and beauty of this spectacle are the eloquent witnesses of peace and progress. The Parthenon and the cathedral exhausted the genius of the ancient, and the skill of the mediæval architects, in housing the statue or spirit of Deity. In their ruins or their antiquity they are mute protests against the merciless enmity of nations, which forced art to flee to the altar for protection. The United states welcome the sister republics of the Southern and Northern Continents, and the nations and peoples of Europe and Asia, of Africa and Australia, with the products of their lands, of their skill and of their industry to this city of yesterday, yet clothed with royal splendor as the Queen of the Great Lakes. The artists and architects of the country have been bidden to design and erect the buildings which shall fitly illustrate the height of our civilization and the breadth of our hospitality. The peace of the world permits and protects their efforts in utilizing their powers for man's temporal welfare. The result is this Park of Palaces. The originality and boldness of their conceptions, and the magnitude and harmony of their creations are the contributions of America to the oldest of the arts, and the cordial bidding of America to the peoples of the earth to come and bring the fruitage of their age to the boundless opportunities of this unparalleled exhibition.

It interest in the affairs of this world are vouchsafed to those who have gone before, the spirit of Columbus hovers over us to-day. Only by celestial intelligence can it grasp the full significance of this spectacle and ceremonial.

From the first century to the fifteenth counts for little in the history of progress, but in the period between the fifteenth and the twentieth is crowded the romance and reality of human development. Life has been prolonged, and its enjoyment intensified. The powers of the air and the water, the resistless forces of the elements, which in the time of the discoverer were the visible terrors of the wrath of God, have been subdued to the service of man. Art and luxuries which could be possessed and enjoyed only by the rich and noble, the works of genius which were read and understood only by the learned few, domestic comforts and surroundings beyond the reach of lord or bishop, now adorn and illumine the homes of our citizens. Serfs are sovereigns and the people are kings. The trophies and splendor of their reign are commonwealths, rich in every attribute of great States, and united in a Republic whose power and prosperity, and liberty and enlightenment are the wonder and admiration of the world.

All hail, Columbus, discoverer, dreamer, hero and apostle. We here, of every race and country, recognize the horizon which bounded his vision and the infinite scope of his genius. The voice of gratitude and praise for all the blessings which have been showered upon mankind by his adventure is limited to no language, but is uttered in every tongue. Neither marble nor brass can fitly form his status. Continents are his monument, and unnumbered millions, past, present, and to come, who enjoy in their liberties and their happiness the fruits of his faith, will reverently guard and preserve, from century to century, his name and fame.

Weekly Budget FROM 42 BROAD STREET

READ! 'TWILL INTEREST YOU.

To sell two Suits of Clothing for every one I've sold before is a task I've set myself to perform this season. It looked almost hopeless, but I rolled up my sleeves and went at it. I'm glad to say that so far I've not only GOT THERE, but am past the mark and almost up to THREE TO ONE. Of course in doing this: FIRST—I had to chop the head off exorbitant prices and at the same time give the very best in the market for the least money. Industry, economy and strict attention to "Biz" were also great factors; but the chief one was the CHOICE SELECTION OF MATERIALS shown, combined with CLOSE PRICES. Such as:

English Serge and Tweed Suitings, $32, $35, $37.
Scotch Cheviots and Bannockburns, $25, $28, $30, $32, $35.
Irish Tweeds and Serges, $28, $30, $33, $36, $39.
Trouserings from $5 up.

I can easily make a reduction of from $1 to $4 50 on above suit quotations were I to use inferior trimmings or poor workmanship. This I've determined not to do. No, No! None of that on my plate, as I've had a hard pull to get my reputation where it stands to-day for HIGH CLASS and CLEAN, HONEST WORK. My order book is beginning to get belly-fat, and as I will not turn out, under any circumstances, slovenly, ill-made or bad-fitting garments, it is necessary for those gentlemen who require a Winter Suit to place their orders now, as I always go for my work in rotation as it comes in.

JOHN McCALLUM'S, The Fashionable Tailor, 42 Broad Street.

HOW TO WASH LACE CURTAINS.

It Is Simple Enough When Once You Know How.

Shake the dust out when taking down, then spread across two lines and brush with a clean feather brush. Put the curtains, one at a time, in a tub half full of milk warm water, with two tablespoonfuls of ammonia added. Let them remain about fifteen minutes, squeezing them with the hands every two or three minutes to loosen the dirt. Continue this process until all have been through three waters, or until the last water looks clean. The ammonia need not be used for but two waters. Then put the curtains in a coarse white bag or pillow case and put in weak, tepid soapsuds made of pure soap, letting it come to a boil. Rinse and blue, then starch if desired. Pin over sheets on the floor of an unoccupied room, stretching to the original measure, which should have been taken, and fastening to the carpet. All the work should be swiftly done to prevent as much shrinkage as possible.

How to Drive Screws in Soft Wood.

Screws can be used in soft wood if powdered rosin be put around the holes made for them and the screws be heated before using. Another way is to fill the hole with thick glue and driving the screw when cold.

How to Clean Wall Paper.

Wall paper can be made to look fresh and new by rubbing it down with a soft flannel or canton flannel cloth or bag tied over the broom. If very dirty, begin at the top and rub down with chunks of white bread cut ready for use. Rub always one way and discard a piece as soon as it is dirty.

How to Tell the Sizes of Books.

A little measurement from the following table will familiarize one with the most common sizes of volumes: Folio, below 18 inches; quarto, below 11 inches; octavo, below 9 inches; duodecimo, below 8 inches; minimo, below 6 inches.

How to Make Cheap Carpeting.

Tack layers of the cheapest cotton cloth smoothly down; then over this paper the floor as you would the walls. When dry add several coats of varnish. This makes a floor covering that will keep good for at least two years; can be washed and keeps its gloss. It is especially good on rooms that are not in constant use.

How to Remove the Taste from New Wooden Pails and Vessels.

Scald the vessel with boiling water, letting it remain till cool. Dissolve pearlash or soda in lukewarm water, add a little lime and wash the inside of the vessel with it. Lastly, scald well and rinse with cold water.

NO. 173.

A BY-LAW

TO ENABLE the Corporation of the City of Victoria to borrow the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars for the purposes therein set forth.

Whereas it is necessary that the streets and sidewalks should be maintained and bridges improved and constructed, and whereas an insufficient sum of the present year's unexpended revenue is at this time available for such work, it is therefore deemed expedient to raise a sum of money for the above purposes.

And whereas for the purposes aforesaid it is intended to raise by way of loan upon the credit of the city the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars.

And whereas it will require the sum of $1,289.00 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the debt and interest as hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole ratable property of the said Corporation of the City of Victoria according to the revised assessment roll, for the year 1891, was $17,563,148.

And whereas it will require an annual special rate of 3-40th of a mill in the dollar for the payment of the interest and the creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the principal of the said interest debt, according to the Municipal Act, 1892.

And whereas it is intended to reduce the general rate so that the said Special rate shall not increase the total rate of taxation.

Be it therefore enacted by the Corporation of the City of Victoria as follows:

SECTION 1.—It shall be lawful for the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Victoria to borrow upon the credit of the said Corporation, by way of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same as a loan, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $25,000.00 currency, or sterling money at the rate of $4.86 2-3rds dollars to the one pound sterling, and to cause all such sums so raised or received to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said Corporation for the purpose and with the object hereinbefore recited.

SECTION 2.—It shall be lawful for the said Mayor to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums as may be required, not exceeding, however, the sum of $25,000.00 either in currency or sterling money (at the rate of $4.86 2-3 dollars to the one pound sterling) as may be required, each of the said debentures being of the amount of $1,000 or its sterling equivalent at the rate aforesaid, and all such debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Corporation and signed by the Mayor thereof.

SEC. (3).—The said debentures shall be made payable in fifty years from the date hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Corporation in the City Hall, Victoria, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest, and the signature of the Mayor or of the Clerk of the Corporation respectively to the coupons may be affixed by printed, stamped or lithographed fac simile.

SECTION 4.—The said debentures shall bear interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly at the office of the said Treasurer.

SEC. (5). For the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest to become due thereon, an equal special rate of 3-40ths of a mill in the dollar shall in addition to all other rates be levied and collected in each year upon all rateable property within the City of Victoria during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

SECTION 6.—This By-law shall before the final passage thereof receive the assent of the electors of the said Corporation in the manner provided for by the Municipal Act, 1892, and shall take effect on the 14th day of October, 1892.

SECTION 7.—This By-law may be cited as the "Street Loan By-Law, 1892."

Passed the Municipal Council this 28th day of September, 1892.

Received the assent of and confirmed by the Municipal Electors on the 11th day of October, 1892.

Reconsidered, adopted and finally passed the Municipal Council on the 12th day of October, A.D. 1892.

NOTICE.

The above is a true copy of a by-law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Victoria on the 12th day of October, 1892, and all persons are hereby required to take notice that anyone desirous of applying to have such by-law or any part thereof quashed, must make his application for that purpose to the Supreme Court within one month next after the publication of this by-law in the British Columbia Gazette, or he will be too late to be heard in that behalf.

Extension of Broad Street to Cormorant by Local Improvement.

Pursuant to section 15 of By-law 170, a by-law to provide for the assessment of real property benefitted by Local Improvements, the following is hereby published, viz:—

CITY HALL, Victoria, Oct. 5, 1892.

His Worship the Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

GENTLEMEN—We, the undersigned, having received a copy of a resolution passed by the Council on the 28th of September, re Broad street extension across lot 1252, block T, have the honor to submit the report and plan attached, in conformity with sections 4 and 5, by-law 170, intituled "A By-law to provide for the assessment of real property benefitted by local improvements."

The following is a description of the real property which in our opinion will be benefitted by the proposed improvement, viz: A portion of the southerly half of Block N., composed of lots 584, 585; east half of 589, 590, 591, 592; the easterly part of 535, 1252 and 1251, Block T.; 657, 658, 659, 660, and part of 661, of the westerly part of Block U.; also 664, 665, 666, 667 and a part of 668, a portion of the easterly part of Block U, also 159a, 160a, 161a, and 162a, a portion of the westerly part of Block 2; also 423, 424, a portion of the easterly part of Block 2; also 164a 165a, 166a, 167a, 168a, 169a, and 170a, and 414, a portion of the westerly part of Block 13; also 406, 413, 416, and 429, a portion of the easterly part of Block 13

2. We consider the proposed improvement will be permanent.

3. The estimate cost of the proposed extension, including right-of-way, removing and making good buildings, grading and macadamizing street, sidewalks, etc., is $12,000, which amount is assessed against the property, that in our opinion is immediately benefited.

4. The proportion in which the assessment is made on the various portions of the real property benefited, is described in detail in the list hereto attached. The real property benefited is shown in red on the plan attached.

Sub-Section D, showing the Proportion on which the Assessment is to be made on the various Lots benefited.

CITY HEALTH NOTICE

THE ACTING MEDICAL HEALTH OFficer for the City of Victoria recommends that all citizens be required to thoroughly clean up their premises, removing all garbage heaps, decaying vegetables, stable manure, and night soil, and disinfecting all closets and drains as often as necessary, and generally to comply with the provisions of the "Consolidated Health By Law."

By order.

WELLINGTON J. DOWLER, C.M.C.

Victoria, October 1, 1892.

EXTRACTS FROM THE "CONSOLIDATED HEALTH BY-LAW.

ACCUMULATION OF FILTH.

No person shall permit or suffer the accumulation, so as to be a nuisance, of any offal, filth, refuse, stagnant water, or other offensive matter or thing upon his premises, or on any vacant lot belonging to him, or for the owner or lessee of which he is the agent.

No person shall place on any land or in or upon any street, road, or highway, any manure or other refuse matter, or any dirt or filth which is, or is likely to become, a nuisance.

No person shall convey or cause to be conveyed through any street, road, or highway any night-soil, swill, or other filth or offensive matter dangerous to health, between the hours of six in the morning and twelve in the evening, or at any time except in a proper covered cart or vehicle, so as to prevent slopping or spilling.

Every tenant or occupier of a building shall dispose of all animal and vegetable refuse from such building or on the premises occupied therewith, either by burning the same or by placing it in a proper covered receptacle, the contents of which he shall cause to be removed at least once every week.

No person shall throw into, or leave in or upon, any street, court, square, road, lane, alley, wharf, public enclosure, vacant lot, pond, or body of water, any dead animal, dirt, sawdust, soot, ashes, cinders, shavings, hair, shreds, manure, fish shells, waste water or filth of any kind, or any refuse, animal, or vegetable matter whatever.

DRAINAGE AND PRIVIES.

The owner, lessee, agent, or person having the care of any ground, yard, vacant lot, or other property where stagnant water or other nuisance exists, abutting on any street through which a common sewer shall have been constructed shall cause the same to be effectually drained into such common sewer.

The owner, lessee, agent, or occupier of any building or premises used as a dwelling house, hotel, restaurant, saloon, shop, store, office, factory, wash-house, or otherwise, shall furnish the same with a sufficient drain underground to carry off all waste or foul water or liquid filth; and no such drain shall empty or discharge into or upon any street, road, or highway, or any open drain thereon, unless in the opinion of the Mayor and Council the same shall not be detrimental to the public health.

All vaults and privies shall be made tight, so that the contents thereof cannot escape therefrom, and as remote from any dwelling, well, or water tank as practicable.

OVERCROWDING.

No person shall let or occupy, or suffer to be occupied, as a dwelling or lodging, any room which—

(a.) Does not contain at all times at least 384 cubic feet of space for each person occupying the same;

(b.) Has not a window made to open in a manner approved by the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector; or

(c.) Has not appurtenant to it the use of a water-closet, earth closet or privy, constructed in accordance with the by-laws and regulations of the City.

And every room in which a person passes the night, or is found between midnight and five o'clock in the forenoon, shall be deemed to be occupied as a dwelling or lodging within the meaning of this section.

SLAUGHTER-HOUSES.

No person shall erect, open, or use any slaughter-house within the limits of the City of Victoria.

EVENTION OF THE SPREAD OF DISEASE.

Whenever a person suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, is an inmate of any hotel or boarding house, the keeper, or one of the keepers, of such hotel or boarding-house shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Every medical practitioner attending or visiting any person who is suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Any officer of the Corporation may seize, and under the direction of the Medical Health Officer, the Mayor or the Sanitary Inspector, destroy any tainted or unwholesome meat, poultry, fish, or other article of food exposed or offered for sale.

PENALTY.

Every person guilty of an infraction of any of the provisions of this by-law shall, upon conviction thereof, in a summary manner, before the Police Magistrate or any two Justices of the Peace having jurisdiction in the City, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, and costs if ordered; and if such penalty, and costs if ordered, be not paid immediately or within such period as such Police Magistrate or Justices may appoint, the same may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, or such offender may be imprisoned, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding three calendar months, unless such penalty, and costs if ordered, be sooner paid.

DRAINS AND ROADS.

A few weeks ago the ratepayers gave the city council permission to borrow $25,000 for the purposes of "maintaining streets and sidewalks" and of "improving and constructing bridges." At the same time they refused permission for the borrowing of $100,000 for the purpose of constructing surface drains. One of the proposed drains was to run from the corner of View and Vancouver streets, along View and Blanchard streets to the Johnson street ravine. One might have supposed that if the vote of the people meant anything at all it meant that money was not to be borrowed for the construction of this drain. But the aldermen composing the street committee thought otherwise, and they therefore recommended that part of the work which the ratepayers had negatived be done under cover of the work which the ratepayers had approved. That is, they decided that the View street drain should be constructed as a part of the work of "maintaining streets." The only difference between the project for which these aldermen argued and that View street project which the ratepayers rejected is that a 16-inch tile drain is substituted for a three-foot brick drain. We do not imagine for a moment that Alderman Hunter thinks any the less of the new project on account of this change, since he knows quite well whence the tile for the drain is likely to come. Now it must take a very far-reaching mind to understand how the construction of a tile surface drain along View and Blanchard streets can be classified under the head of maintenance of roads. The subtle intellects of Ald. Hunter and the Colonist are equal to the task, however. The municipal law very explicitly declares that money borrowed for one purpose shall not be devoted to any other purpose; it also emphatically sets forth the rule that no two different and distinct purposes shall be covered by any money by-law to be voted on by the ratepayers. All these prohibitions can be set aside, apparently, by calling certain purposes by other than their correct names. As for instance, drain-making can be called maintenance of roads, and then the money borrowed for the latter purpose can be devoted to the former without coming in conflict with the law, or even leaving a stain on the aldermanic conscience. Great is the power of casuistry as employed by Ald. Hunter and the Colonist. If any other neighborhood wants a surface drain put in the residents know now how it may be done, in spite of the refusal of the ratepayers to allow money to be borrowed for that purpose. It is only necessary to represent to Ald. Hunter that the drain is an essential part of the roadway, when the street committee will have no hesitation in diverting a part of the $25,000. In all such cases, of course, tile drains will be the things to ask for.

NEEDS INVESTIGATION.

The Government seems to have been doing some queer juggling with townsites in the Kootenay district. It will be remembered that last winter a proclamation was issued reserving all the land immediately surrounding Slocan lake, the reason advanced for this action being the Government's anxiety to prevent "speculation in agricultural lands." At the time when this land was reserved a good many men in the district had applied for locations within the limits of the reservation, and of course prospective townsites were the dearest objects of the locators' affections. The size of the Government reserve was finally reduced to such an extent that it included only the townsite in posse afterwards known successively as Eldorado and New Denver, and a tract at the head of the lake. In course of time New Denver was placed on the market and a large number of lots sold. But there has been some mysterious hocus-pocus in connection with the New Denver reserve, as appears from the following remarks in the Miner:—

Hitherto we have been very reticent on the question of the New Denver townsite. We have been content with pointing out that if this townsite ought not to belong to the Government now, neither ought the money paid for lots already sold, to be retained by the Government. This reticence has apparently given rise to some misapprehension, and we have been accused of favoring the claim of a particular claimant to the townsite. We have nothing to do with one claim or the other. Our duty is filled in criticising the action of the Government. The lifting of the reserve was only a tardy act of justice—the land should never have been reserved. But like many acts of justice, it carries with it a serious injustice. Those who bought lots in New Denver under the impression that it was to be a Government townsite, had those lots sold to them under false pretences, and if the Government is so influenced by considerations of abstract justice, the money paid should be returned. There are certain questions about the motives of the Government in this matter which require explanation. Why is the reserve lifted at New Denver, and not at the head of the lake? Surely what is sauce for the goose, is sauce for the gander, and what the Government will do for contested claims of Messrs. McGillivray and Farwell, it should also do for the claimants at the head of the lake. If this question can be satisfactorily answered, well and good. If it cannot, there remains but one solution, namely that the influence of Mr. Farwell could secure that which the right of the claimants at the head of the lake could not; and that the Government in this matter has been heaping jobbery upon injustice, and corruption upon the original arbitrary exercise of power which resulted in the reserve.

As before remarked the Government's townsite operations at New Denver and Nakusp and its dilatoriness in proceeding with necessary works in the district are entirely discreditable. Its whole treatment of the Kootenay country should become the subject of an investigation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Colonist has apparently nothing to say in answer to the questions which the TIMES propounded in re Caron. When our neighbor can find a grave offence in Mr. Laurier's appearance in the court room where Mr. Mercier was to be tried, and yet can see nothing wrong in the corruption schemes of the Postmaster-General, we are reluctantly compelled to infer that there is some defect in its moral vision.

Chicago, which never does things by halves, is to-day dedicating with elaborate ceremonies the grounds and buildings for the use of the World's Fair. The demonstration is both a formal inauguration of the Exhibition and a commemoration of the great discovery made by Columbus, for though the date of the navigator's landing on San Salvador island was Oct. 12, 1492, to-day is the actual anniversary of the event. There is a difference of nine days in the calendar caused by the introduction of the New Style. The Windy City, as was to be expected, has not failed in producing a demonstration worthy of both its purposes.

THE EPIDEMIC OF COWPOX.

TO THE EDITOR:—The smallpox commission is now bringing to light so much that is new and interesting about the epidemic, that I think its powers might be extended with advantage. If the commissioners were to enquire into the origin and causes which led to the spread of the late severe epidemic of cowpox, and the steps necessary to prevent a recurrence of the disease, they would perform a public service. Perhaps the medical officer will kindly put in statistics showing the number of patients who have died from cowpox, all of whom were vaccinated without a doubt. More light on this subject would relieve many besides AN ANXIOUS MOTHER.

Baffled the Mob.

ATCHISON, Kansas, Oct. 21.—Ten masked men broke into Mrs. Harry Walcott's home in West Atchison last evening and assaulted F. M. Fowler, a young lawyer, who was calling there. Fowler drew a revolver, and before he could use it the mob overpowered him and carried him into the yard, shouting "Hang him to an electric light pole." Fowler, who is a powerful man, freed his right arm and knocked two of the men down, the neighbors began to congregate and the rest of the mob fled. One of them cut Fowler on the hand with a knife as he ran away. Mrs. Walcott tore the mask from two of the men and recognized her husband, against whom she has a suit for divorce, and a man named William Lutz. Fowler is Mrs. Wolcott's attorney. Walcott is at the head of a tin roof manufacturing establishment. He admitted this morning that he led the mob, but said it was for the purpose of getting evidence of his wife's infidelity rather than to injure Fowler. Mrs. Wolcott and Fowler deny that their conduct has been improper. Fowler says he went to the house to give Mrs. Wolcott a check for alimony allowed by the district court, and given to him for that purpose by Walcott. Mr. and Mrs. Walcott were married five years ago and separated last July.

Diphtheria and Cholera.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 21.—Diphtheria is raging at Flint, Mich., and Bay City. In the former the public schools have been closed. The state and local health boards are still quarrelling over anti-cholera measures.

Grover Cleveland's Charity.

EUFAULA, Ala., Oct. 21.—The Daily Mail, which is raising a fund for Prof. Frederick Nichols Crouch, the composer of the famous song, "Kathleen Mavourneen," now in his 84th year, and in financial distress, has received the following letter from Mr. Cleveland: "Victoria Hotel, New York, Oct. 15th, 1891. My Dear Sir—Your letter is at hand and I cheerfully enclose as a donation to the Prof. Crouch fund $5. Although, as you say, my charity tax is somewhat of a burden, I feel that I can well afford to aid you in your disinterested labors in behalf of one who has done so much for the entertainment of his fellows. Hoping that you will be eminently successful in your benevolent designs, yours very truly, Grover Cleveland." Above the letter Mr. Cleveland had written the words, "Not to be published." He was immediately besought by telegraph to permit publication of the letter, "For the sake of the good it may do the aged composer." To this request Mr. Cleveland responded by wire, "All right." The limit of the contribution asked of Mr. Cleveland was $5.

Fools and Their Money.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 21.—Jennie McIntyre, a credulous domestic in the family of Louis Bolle, had her fortune told by a gypsy yesterday. It was to the effect that she would become heiress to a great fortune in a day or two, but that it would not materialize until she did something to show implicit faith in the fortune teller. The latter suggested some money as a test, and receiving $6.50, the sorceress said she would hide it under a stone near by. Subsequently she returned and declared that the spirits must have more money or the fortune could not be had. The girl gave her $315, all the money she had. Yesterday the sheriff recovered the money.

Peculiarly Deformed.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 21.—A boy weighing 20 pounds was born to Mrs. David Shinker, of Wallace street, yesterday. The mother is doing well, but it is doubtful whether the boy will live, as it is very peculiarly deformed. Its upper lip is divided by a slit from the nose down. The roof of the child's mouth is slit crosswise. The child, when nursing, has much difficulty in conveying nourishment to the stomach, a large part of it going up through the slit in the roof of the mouth and coming out of the nostrils. The parents are of medium weight and statute.

A New Liberal Paper.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—A new newspaper, probably to be called the Westminster or Charing Cross Gazette will take the place of the Pall Mall Gazette, in the course of the coming three months. The Marquis of Ripon, Mr. J. T. Brunner, M. P. for Northwitch, the wealthy chief owner of the Winnington Alkali Works, and other well known leading Liberals have subscribed £5000 to give the new publication a start. Brunner is said to have a large interest in the Star.

His Doom Sealed.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The trial of Thos. Neill Cream, otherwise known as Thomas Neill, for the murder of Matilda Glover by poisoning with strychnine, resulted to-day in a verdict of guilty of murder as charged in the indictment. Under English law no appeal can be taken in criminal cases except to the home secretary. This settles Cream's fate, he will be hanged unless he cheats the gallows by suicide.

Fully Persuaded.

VIENNA, Oct. 20.—The gen d'armes have ordered back 400 Russian Hebrews who tried to enter Austria, near Bojouczwk, to-day. The emigrants would not turn back, and, after exhausting all other means of deterring them, the gen d'armes opened fire. Three emigrants were killed and 22 were severely wounded. The rest went back across the frontier.

Met Death in Mexico.

MONTEREY, Mexico, Oct. 21.—An American tourist, S. Tarrall, of Buffalo, was killed at Casorce, a mining town south of here, yesterday. It is supposed that he was murdered. The body was found at the foot of a cliff one hundred feet high horribly mutilated. The unfortunate man was wealthy and has relatives in New York, who have been notified of his fate. He had been in Mexico about three months.

Argued to Death.

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 21.—Squire O'Donnell, a prominent citizen of Audenried, was shot and killed this morning by Isaac Phillips, a constable. The men was having an excited political discussion when Phillips suddenly drew a pistol and fired three times at O'Donnel, the balls taking effect. The murdered man was a justice of the peace and a very prominent polititian.

Carbolic Acid Did It.

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Oct. 21.—Miss Husie Hobbler, aged 22, died very suddenly last night, evidently from the effects of poison. A young man named Simons, to whom she was engaged, was arrested on suspicion. Miss Hobbler's younger sister was taken ill as a result of the shock. Mrs. Banks, with whom the girl lived, administered carbolic acid.

Left Alone.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 21.—Patrick Harkins and James Harkins, twins, who were born 76 years ago, have been tailors here for more than 50 years. Yesterday morning Patrick died; his twin brother was in good health, but the shock of his brother's death caused him to become dangerously ill, and his recovery is not expected.

The Strain of Answering Lawyers' Questions Too Much for Capt. McClellan.

The Coquitlam seizure case has been continued till Tuesday. Evidence was taken yesterday afternoon till 5 o'clock, when Captain McClellan, of the Coquitlam, who was in the box, asked in the name of mercy that he be given a respite. He contended that the long mental strain of giving evidence all day and replying to questions of legal gentlemen was too much. Lawyer Hughes, of Seattle, said that he had an engagement in Seattle Friday and Saturday. The interested parties mutually agreed to the adjournment of the case till Tuesday. Captain McClellan will then again be placed on the stand. Judge Demers and A. W. Brown, the newspaper man who is a witness, will go to Seattle to-night, and will, with Attorney Hughes, return on Monday to resume the taking of testimony.

THE LUMBER COMBINE.

A Short Chat on the Subject With a Prominent Lumber Merchant.

Manager Morrison, of the Shawnigan Lake Lumber Company, was brushing a black soft felt hat. He looked around and enquired what he could do for a TIMES man who had entered.

"You can tell me whether the report that the lumber combine is broken is correct."

"Well, it is this way. The Sayward Milling Co., the successors of W. P. Sayward, 'cut' on schedule prices. We called a meeting. The Sayward Co. would not enter the combine so we are all giving whatever prices we wish now."

"So lumber falls?"

"Yes, sir. The prices before the combine were, for rough lumber, $8 and $9 a thousand; dressed lumber brought $18. The combine's prices were $12 for rough and $22 for dressed lumber. If you want any lumber we give you a good low quotation. Can't we sell you a few thousand feet?"

The newspaper man explained that the lumber used in a newspaper office was the lead pencil. The Shawinagan Co. did not deal in them so there was no sale.

EXONERATED FROM ALL BLAME

Captain Jaegers and Crew of the Rithet Not Responsible for the Pope Accident.

Capt. Gaudin made public his decision in the Pope drowning case this afternoon. He exonerates Capt. Jaegers and the crew of the steamer R. P. Rithet from all blame. The report, after stating that in pursuance of an order-in-council the investigation was held, says:

"I have arrived at the conclusion that no culpable neglect can be attributed to the master or crew of the steamer R. P. Rithet or charged to them for causing this lamentable accident. The testimony of the quartermaster and two passengers must be credited that they heard Capt. Jaegers call out to D. Deacon not to attempt to board the steamer until she was fairly stopped and Mr. Deacon admits that he would not have heard the warning on account of the noise the steamer made and the wind. The testimony of twenty witnesses must be believed to the effect that the small boat kept pulling towards the steamer until her side was touched, when the gangway was missed the boat became unmanageable, the oars having been either knocked out of the rowers' hands or not being sufficient space to use them between the sides of the boat and the steamer and before the steamer could be stopped the wheel struck the boat."

Want to Raise the Premier.

The Grant Brothers, of Tacoma, patentees of the wonderful collapsible cylinders and mysterious chemicals, and famous for sealskin sacques, diamonds and pianos, are going to bid on the job to raise the steamer Premier. They claim that they can put in a figure that will shut out all possible competition. They will be ready to go to work on the Premier in 12 days. Their apparatus is now at Tacoma. It consists of air pumps, condensers and apparatus for injecting chemicals into their collapsible cylinders, together with air. This chemical ingredient is known only to the Grant boys, and as the chemical is of no use without the appliances and apparatus, which are patented, they will not even have the chemicals patented. By this chemical they say they can increase the pressure practically 4000 pounds to the square inch instead of 400 pounds air pressure, as has heretofore been announced. Air alone, they say, frequently fails to raise a vessel, but the chemicals injected, together with the air, can raise an object which had no natural buoyancy. Ten times as much weight can be raised by the chemicals, together with air, that can be raised with the air alone. The collapsible cylinders now stored are of heavy duck, such as used in making hydraulic hose. Some of it is protected by a cordage band, and also a metallic covering. Captain Warner thinks it will be more difficult to raise the Premier than the San Pedro. The Grant boys says it makes little difference what condition the boat is in, they are confident of floating her in a few hours, once their apparatus is attached. The attaching of the apparatus will consist simply of placing the duck cylinders or sacks inside the Premier. They will be scattered throughout the hull, and then they will be simultaneously inflated with air and the secret chemical process. Once afloat, the apparatus will be "corked up," as it were, and the hull will be towed to a dry dock. The Grant boys would rather, for the safety of the vessel, have the Premier should they take the contract to float her, floated to the Puget Sound dry dock at Maury Island, rather than send her through the Straits.

Absent Without Permission.

Two members of No. 4 Battery, B. C. B.G.A., who failed to attend drill on Wednesday evening have been summoned to appear at the police court to answer to the charge of being absent without leave. The captains of all the batteries are particularly anxious to have all the men attend the drill, as the annual inspection will take place shortly.

Dr. M. S. Wade has been appointed by the Provincial Government to fill the vacancy on the school board caused by the death of Mr. Thomas McConnan.

Opening Meeting.

The opening meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Band of Hope takes place to-night. There will be a concert by members and friends, to which all are invited.

A Distinguished Party.

Baroness Macdonald, Hon. Mary Macdonald, Miss Ramsay Brown and Miss Peacock of Earnscliffe, Ottawa, are registered at the Dallas Hotel. The party will remain in Victoria for two or three months.

Oak Bay Mision.

The first regular services at the Oak Bay Mission hall will be held on Sunday. In the afternoon there will be Sunday school, and in the evening services will be held. Mr. F. W. Teague will conduct the evening services.

Masquerade Ball.

A masquerade ball will be given in the Philharmonic Hall on Tuesday the 25th inst. A prize will be given for the best lady waltzer in costume. All maskers will be identified. Admission, gentleman maskers $1, ladies free.

Poultry Supplies.

Mr. F. W. Teague has rented one of the stores in the market building, where he will deal in poultry of all kinds, but principally fancy breeds. He will keep in stock all varieties of poultry, pigeons and pet stock, poultry books and publications, farm produce and incubators and brooders.

Will Present an Address.

The Young Men's Institute and the Young Ladies' Institute of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic church will present a joint address of welcome to the visiting Catholic prelates and clergy the afternoon of Sunday, Oct. 30. The address will be presented in the old church. The public are invited.

Quadri-Centennial Services.

Solemn high mass in honor of the Columbus quadri-centennial was celebrated at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic church this morning. Rev. Father Mandart officiated, assisted by Father Nicolaye as deacon, and Father Van Nevel as sub-deacon. The choir chanted the Te Deum. The congregation was a large one.

For the London Market.

Shipment of sealskins to the London market are being made very briskly now, and few skins remain on the market. Yesterday morning 101 casks, or about three carloads, were despatched east over the C.P.R. This morning another carload of 35 casks went out. R. P. Rithet & Co., Thomas Earle & Co. and Ulman & Co. were the shippers.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

There will be a congregation meeting at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church next Monday evening. The meeting is for the purpose of considering the question now uppermost in the minds of all in the church—their relations with their pastor. The session will be a most important one to all in the congregation, and there will be undoubtedly a very large gathering.

No Highland Regiment Here.

A dispatch from Ottawa says that General Herbert has reported against the proposal to form a Highland regiment in this city. Minister Bowell has not given his decision on the matter yet but General Herbert's settles it; there will be no Highland corps for Victoria. General Herbert says artillery is the proper arm for this province and would like to see separate corps on the Island and Mainland.

Thirty Thousand Dollar Sale.

One of the largest transactions completed in the real estate market in the past few weeks was closed this morning. It was the sale of 912 acres adjoining the townsite of Duluth, on Duncan's Bay. The property was sold by Samuel Robins for the New Vancouver Coal Co., and bought by Mr. W. J. Macaulay and others. The price was stated to be $30,000. Property is very active in that neighbourhood.

A Useful Institution.

Mr. E. E. Blackwood has been appointed agent for Victoria for the World's Fair Hotel and Boarding Bureau. The bureau agrees for the sum of $32 to supply visitors to Chicago with good accommodations, room and board in a transient or family hotel, or select private boarding house, for six consecutive days. Without any extra charge they will attend to the visitor's baggage and supply him with admission tickets to the Exposition and other places of interest open during the fair. Besides this the visitors will be entitled to an excursion on Lake Michigan, and to wind up with, he will be presented with a World's Exposition hand book.

The Lizzie Bell Ashore.

The bark Lizzie Bell which left here early this week for Portland, where she is under charter to take wheat, ran aground on the Columbia river bar on Wednesday afternoon, and at last reports was still fast in the sands. The dispatches say that she is in no danger, but the Columbia river bar is a bad place at this time of the year. She ran on very near the jetty, and the tug Wallowa, after trying for two hours to pull her off, broke her hawser. She could could not be moved. It was low water at the time, but it is surprising that the vessel grounded, as she was in ballast. It was hoped yesterday morning that a high tide would offer an opportunity to get her off. The Bell is commanded by Captain Lewis and after discharging a cargo here in April lay in harbor awaiting charter for five months. She was chartered to load wheat at Portland for the United Kingdom. Nothing was known of the mishap at the office of her agents, R. P. Rithet & Co., when a TIMES man called there this morning.

CITY POLICE COURT.

Siwashes Who Worshipped Bacchus—A Sure Cure for Lumbago.

William, an Indian, was found in the possession of a bottle of whiskey. Fined $25 or one month.

Charlie, another Indian, was given a similar sentence for the same offence. Both Indians said that a Chinaman gave them the liquor. They were sent out with a constable to find the Celestial.

Thos. Frank, an Indian, drunk, was fined $5. Ten days in default.

The adjourned case of Peter Jamieson, charged by Henry Jenson with non-payment of salary, was taken up. Mary Jamieson, wife of Peter Jamieson, swore that her husband never agreed to pay the lodging of Jenson. Jenson was given judgment for $19.

Robert Mannor was convicted of stealing a wheelbarrow from William Lang. Mannor appealed to the court, saying that he was suffering excruciating pains from an attack of the aristocratic complaint of lumbago. This was the first time that he had stood before the court. If he stole the wheelbarrow it must have been when his excruciating lumbago pains temporarily deranged his mental equilibrium. The court prescribed as a remedy for the attack of lumbago a month with hard labor.

A Resolution of Condolence.

At the last regular meeting of the Victoria West Epworth League the following resolution of condolence was unanimously passed: Resolved, that we, the members of the Epworth League of Christian Endeavor of the Methodist Church, at Victoria West, desire herewith to record our sincere sorrow at the removal from our midst by death of Bro. Byron V. Leigh. As a League we have lost one of our most valued and faithful members, one who was always ready and willing to do what he could to aid our league enterprises, and one who constantly set before us the elevating example of an earnest Christian life. As individual members of this League we feel that each has lost a true and noble friend. We desire also herewith to express our heartfelt sympathy with those who have been so suddenly bereft of a beloved son and brother. We earnestly hope and pray that the God who is "too wise to err," and "too good to be unkind," whose "eye is ever upon the righteous" and whose "ear is ever open unto their cry," may give to them the required grace for their support in this most trying hour, that their faith coming forth from this furnace of affliction as "gold tried in the fire," may but bind them closer to the Saviour, in whom our departed brother trusted, and that we with them, may, when life is past, join him and all those loved ones who have gone before, around the throne of God, never to part again, but to enjoy eternal and unbroken happiness in the presence of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ."

One of the Earliest.

John Gregg, who died at his residence in Saanich several days ago, walked from Hudson's Bay to British Columbia, across the plains and mountains, in 1848. He was then in the Hudson Bay Company's service, and upon his arrival here he acted as the company's auctioneer in disposing of a ship's cargo. This was the first auction held in the province. After severing his connection with the company, the deceased started a lime kiln near the Four Mile House, subsequently purchasing a farm in Saanich. He was a Scotchman by birth, and was between 70 and 80 years of age. During his younger years he was considered the life of the small social gatherings that reminded the few struggling settlers in the early fifties of civilization, and among old timers, and in fact among all who knew him, he had not an enemy. A wife and a large family are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father.

The Iona Seized.

The steamer Iona has been detained by Inspector Thomson for carrying passengers without a license. The Iona is owned by John Morris, T. Stanfield and other Vancouverites. It is alleged that she left the harbor a few days ago with 50 Chinamen and being driven into Port San Juan on account of an accident to her propellor, she landed her Chinamen there. Some of the Chinamen came to town last evening, but most of them are still down the coast and it is said they are in a starving condition. Affidavits of several witnesses will be taken after which the inspector will await instructions from Ottawa.

Talk About the Devil.

The friends of Harry V. Burner, the real estate man, are telling a very good story on him just at present. It seems that a few days ago he was discussing the finances of the city with a number of friends, and he claimed that everybody should be made to pay the poll, road and school taxes, and then there would be more money in the treasury. This morning Tax Collector Dearberg called on Mr. Burner himself, and collected $8 from him. It seems he had not paid his own for a couple of years. Mr. Burner is now searching for the man who had his record looked up.

In an Asylum.

Captain McLeod, of the schooner Ariel, which was seized by the Russians, received a letter from San Francisco last night, in which it is stated that Captain Lorentzen, of the bark Majestic, had gone insane. Lorentzen was the captain of the Majestic when that vessel brought the sealers home the Siberian coast.

New Fishing Grounds.

The fishermen who spent the summer at Clayoquot Sound salmon fishing, encouraged by the splendid results of their work, are returning to the fishing grounds for the winter. During the next few months they will fish for dog fish, principally for oil. They leave for Clayoquot this evening on the steamer Mystery with supplies and the necessary vats for extracting the oil from the fish. If successful, the men will be kept at work both summer and winter, fishing for salmon in summer and oil fish in winter.

Progressive Business Men.

The meeting of Progressive Business Men, held at the Pioneer Hall last night, was not large. At ten minutes past eight a contingent, numbering as many as those previously assembled, arrived, and seeing the state of affairs marched off to the rooms of Madame Bell to have their fortunes told. The reply to a query of one of the gentlemen as to his prospects of filling the mayoralty chair in January next was not satisfactory and he has decided not to offer himself for election.

An Expert's Opinion.

Captain Biondi, Lloyds' agent for Puget Sound, who was in the city on Wednesday, said that the Premier could be raised and be ready to go into the Esquimalt dock as soon as the Warspite comes out. There is now little doubt that she will be raised and repaired.

THE KOOTENAY COUNTRY.

Good Progress Made With the Kaslo-Slocan Wagon Road—Ore Shipment Contract.

Trouble With Indians—Death of a Pioneer Miner—Government Carelessness.

Special Correspondence of the TIMES.]

NELSON, Oct. 17.—Estimate No. 1 for the Kaslo wagon road has been paid. The estimate covers six and a half miles of the road, not all of which, however, is fully completed.

So far the contract has been profitable, and the engineer's report indicates a good deal of easy work ahead. At the present rate, 30 to 40 days will open the road to Bear Lake, 20 miles from Kaslo. Perry, Gray & Davys have completed their contract for the location of the line through to Cody Creek. They report a favorable line all the way, with grades well within the limit fixed by the specification, viz., three per cent. going east and ten per cent. going west, except in one or two very short pieces. Their estimates show that the whole can be completed within the figures of the contract. The Kootenay Lake Reduction Works Co. have subscribed $1,000 toward the funds of the road.

Considerable new life has been infused into Kaslo by the prosecution of this enterprise. The sidewalks are frequently crowded with men. The hotels, of which there are eight open, are full, many new buildings are going up and much freight and merchandise coming in. Mr. Musgrave has arrived with a printing press and outfit to start the Kaslo Examiner. It is also understood that Mr. Houston has gone to Toronto to bring in a plant for a new paper to be started in Nelson.

The annual meeting of the K. L. Telephone Company was held on the 15th. The company has a paid up capital of about $7500, which amount has about paid the cost of 45 miles of line and 40 phones, which have been put in operation. The rentals and central office receipts amount to $230 per month, which leaves a margain above working expenses. The hope of a dividend for the year has been spoiled by the fierce forest fires which have raged during the summer. It was decided at the meeting to sell new stock to the amout of $2000 and use the proceeds in the extension of the line to Kaslo. F. S. Barnard, J. Houston, G. O. Buchanan and G. Hayward were elected directors with the following new material, viz.: J. Tolson, C. W. Busk and E. Atherton. A directors' meeting is called for Saturday, October 29th.

The steamer Kaslo arrived in port at noon yesterday (Sunday) and left again hastily. She had been chartered for a special trip to carry Dr. Williams to Kaslo to attend Mr. Coy's infant, which was very ill. The little one died within an hour after the doctor's arrival.

Mr. Jas. Brennan, discoverer of the Brennan camp, lies very low of mountain fever at Kaslo, and Jack Evans, well-known to all old-timers, died at New Denver a day or two since.

Nelson is full of mining men tonight, on hand to "wa-wa" his honor the Judge in the county court to-morrow. It is understood that Judge Walkem is coming, an appointment always acceptable.

From the Miner.]

The publication of the Hot Springs News has been discontinued.

Eight inches of snow fell on the Grizzly Bear mine on Monday last.

Reports reached us that a man named Sandell was lost near Duncan river while out hunting.

The trail up Spring creek to the Bluebird has been started. It will be wide enough to be used as a sleigh road. A contract has been let for hauling down 100 tons of ore this winter.

A rich gold find is said to have been made near Northport by two laborers who went on a prospecting trip, accompanied by an axe and a sublime trust in providence

The wagon road is now completed six miles out of Kaslo, and in good condition for freighting ore; nearly 200 men are at work pushing it forward; the wages have been fixed at $3 a day all round.

T. E. Jefferson has secured a bond on S. K. Green's interest in the Washington. This will give him control of three-fourths of the mine, and he is determined to push work vigorously this winter. A contract for running a tunnel 100 feet has been let, three good log-houses are being put up, and work will soon be started on the branch road to connect the mines round McGuigan lake with the Kaslo Slocan trunk road.

The object of Mr. Kellie's visit was to find out what the miners thought of the mining law. He found unanimous condemnation of the present law; a unanimous feeling in favor of the principles of the act of 1891; but no desire to have that law returned to except with its defects remedied. Miners do not forget that it was under that act that the system of snow and wild-cat locations was in full play, and they have seen enough of the effects of that system to be unwilling to return to it.

The trouble with the Indians at the boundary is not over yet, as imagined. On the 8th inst., the Indian agent, Mr. Norbury, called a meeting of the tribe, at which Mr. D. McLaughlin acted as interpreter, with a view to settling any disputes and assessing any damage that may have been, or may be done by the Reclamation company. The chief rose and said that he would make no settlement, and that the work must stop. Mr. Norbury did is best to pacify him and to come to some understanding, but to no purpose The Indians were decidedly hostile, though the chief has since expressed sorrow for what took place, and has said he would like to meet the Indian agent again and talk matters over. What price, "fire-water."

A contract has been let for the shipment of 100 tons of ore from the Bluebird. Men are now at work making a sleigh road to connect with the Kaslo wagon road at Bear lake. The history of the Bluebird is a happy augury of the success of the Slocan mining district. When first taken hold of, the Bluebird showed large surface croppings, which were, however, very much broken up. A tunnel has been run to cut the lode at a considerable depth and not only has a four and a half foot lode been found in place, but the ore, of which there is a large body, assays 25 ounces to the ton higher than the surface croppings. The Bluebird has gone down and shows up better the further down it has been worked.

It was only lately that we became aware of the appalling fact that the record offices at Ainsworth and New Denver were unprovided with fire proof safes. Is the Government mad that it entrusts to the risk of loss by fire the whole of the records of the Slocan country, not to mention the mineral belt behind Ainsworth? This is a more urgent matter than either the mining law or Mr. Kellie. It is enough to make a man's hair grow gray to think of what would happen if the records at those offices were destroyed. We sincerely hope that Mr. Fritzstubbs will see to it at once that fire-proof safes are placed in those offices. It is almost incredible that they have not been procured before. Without protection against destruction, a record is absolutely no guarantee of title.

The Children Make Merry.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The children of all the public schools of this city celebrate Columbus day to-day and to-morrow. All the schools are profusely decorated and children to-day carried out the following programme before a large number of visitors: Reading of the president's proclamation by the principal; raising the flag by the color guards; salute to the flag by the pupils; reading of the scriptures; song of Columbus day by the pupils and audience; address, "The meaning of four centuries;" the ode, "Columbus' Banner;" song, "Red, White and Blue;" composition, "Columbus." In Brooklyn over 20,000 children belonging to the various Roman Catholic churches and societies paraded the principal thoroughfares, gaily dressed, carrying banners, symbols of the various vicissitudes in the life of Columbus. At the cathedral the parade was reviewed by Mayor Boody, Bishop McDonnel and the aldermen of the city. In the afternoon the children were feasted at the various school rooms and churches, and after singing "Columbia" dismissed. The weather was superb and the whole city in holiday attire.

Prof. Smith on Home Rule.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The Times publishes a letter from Professor Goldwin Smith, answering some of the statements in Rt. Hon. Mr. Gladstone's article on "Home Rule" in the North American Review. The Professor says that among educated Americans the traditional hatred of England is dead. Among the masses it is dying out. What is left is kept alive by newspapers stimulated by Protectionists in their own interests. Hatred of anything British is affected by American politicians for the sake of the Irish vote. The Professor adds: I have yet to see the American who really cares for the Irish cause, or who clearly understands the meaning of Irish Home Rule. The Americans pretended love for Mr. Gladstone is nothing but hatred of England. Americans cannot help in their hearts spurning the Englishman who, while holding Great Britain's highest trust, stabs her character in a foreign press.

Dissatisfied With the Bishop.

DENISON, Tex., Oct. 21.—Father Crowley, pastor of St. Patrick's church, has been suspended for six weeks for a breech of discipline. Eleven other priests in this diocese have also been suspended on charges similar to those pending against Father Crowley. Charges of mal-administration and misconduct have been drawn up and signed by leading priests of the diocese of Dallas against Bishop Brennan and forwarded to Rome. All the priests who have signed the paper have been suspended Among them are the pastors of the churches of Denison, Weatherford and St. Patrick's, in Dallas. Bishop Brennan of the diocese is in Rome. There has been general dissatisfaction at the manner in which the bishop conducts ecclesiastical matters. This forenoon Father Crowley called the leading churchmen together to explain to them that he had been suspended, and said there would be no services next Sunday.

Threatened With an Injunction.

The Westminster Southern Railway are threated with another injunction. John Ford, owner of property near South Westminster, through which the Westminster Southern passes, seeks an injunction compelling the railway to forgo the right of way. The case was to have been heard in Victoria, but the absence of Mr. Justice Walkem caused its postponement. Lawyer Ferin, of Westrainster, was here for the railway and Mr. Louis P. Eckstein for Mr. Ford.

Filed Their Objection.

A deputation of citizens of Victoria West waited upon the board of health at its meeting last night and objected to the presence of the suspect station in the neighborhood.

WHAT THE DOCTOR SAID.

EXPERIENCE PROVES IT.

A Montreal physician said the other day that he was attending a large number of people who were suffering from sore throat, coughs and affections of the bronchial tubes. The well-known physician remarked: "This it just the season when these troubles come on. The sudden changes in temperature; the cold and damp days are productive of serious results."

When spoken to regarding Harvard Bronchial Sprup, the physician said: "It is a grand remedy, and I frequently prescribe it in my practice; and I know of other doctors who are recommending it."

This king of cough remedies is worthy of a place in every home in case of emergencies. It always gives instant relief, and can be used by the young as well as the old, as it contains no injurious ingredients.

Thousands of men and women in Canada are aware of the wonderful proprieties of Harvard Bronchial Syrup, and recommend it to their friends. We earnestly advise every reader who suffers from sore throat, cough, hoarseness or enlargement of the tonsils, to go at once and purchase a bottle; every druggist sells it.

Altogether Too Delightful.

"What we have got to do, girls," said a pretty young woman the other day as she sat on her foot among the cushions of a divan exchanging summer adventures and winter plans with a couple of friends, "is to make war on these delightful bachelor apartment houses. A man called on me last night who went to live in one last spring. He is full of enthusiasm yet, and I don't wonder. The one he lives in is a big house on Fifth avenue that was the former residence of Mrs. ——. When her husband died she disliked to live there alone and had it made over into bachelor suites. Then she put her butler, who had married her maid, in charge, and the place is filled with men who live altogether too delightfully.

"My friend says nobody ever leaves unless he dies or gets married, and they evidently take the greatest pains to avoid either misfortune. Mr. L. has, he says, a pretty parlor, with open fire, rugs and all that sort of thing, and a bedroom and a large bath and dressing room, and he hasn't a care in the world. He never knows anything about his laundry, for instance. His drawers and presses are always filled with fresh linen, of whose gathering and washing he has been quite ignorant. A stitch is never needed, for it is always taken before he discovers the necessity. His clothes are looked after by the butler, who sends them away to be pressed or sponged whenever it seems to him proper. His hats are always brushed and even his umbrellas are kept trim and taut ready to be grabbed up hastily. If he is going away he wires up from the office and his bag or trunk is packed and sent off to the station; when he comes back his luggage goes to the house and he goes down town; when he reaches his room again the trunk has vanished and his belongings are all in place.

"Everything he sends to the house is paid for on arrival, and once a month an itemized bill is presented to him, and that is the end of it. He gets up when he pleases, touching his bell when he does so, and when he is ready a tempting little breakfast is spread in his parlor. He dines where he chooses. 'I am looking forward to the winter nights,' he remarked last evening, 'when, with the couch drawn up before the fire, my book and my pipe, I shall forget the cold and storm without in the cheer and comfort within.' What do you think of that sentiment from a man who is a good dancer? Isn't it all too ideal and dreadful?" And the other girls looked very solemn and said that it was.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Expenses of a Big Hotel.

The season now closed at Coney Island has been the busiest the island has known for years, and yet it is a serious question whether the hotels there have made any money in the long run. Some of the smaller may, but not the larger. It is a notorious fact that they have not been fortunate for seasons past, and that last year the question of reopening was debated for some time before it was undertaken. The rush of the people and the prices asked would seem to suggest profit, but the crowd must be a big one to make the appearance a reality. Few outsiders realize the magnitude of the business of summer hotel keeping or the quantity of supplies needed to keep the caravansary going. Some of the statistics may interest if not surprise the average visitor to the seaside. A recent glimpse at the books of the Manhattan Beach Improvement company shows that for one month of last season the supplies for the Manhattan Beach and Oriental hotels cost as follows:

Beef, mutton, lamb, etc.	$30,000
Poultry	12,000
Fish	8,000
Vegetables	7,500
Butter	3,200
Flour	1,500
Ice (400 tons)	1,000
Employees	30,000

No figures are given here of the cost of milk, sugar, tea, coffee and other groceries of a like character, of which proportionate quantities are used, nor of the music, a large item, nor of the inevitable waste and breakage, nor of the gas and electric lighting, and many other items, making up a total of huge proportions.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Men's Handkerchiefs.

There has never before been so many effective designs as to treatment of pattern and color blending of handkerchiefs for men as the present season has disclosed. Indeed for variety and cleverness of conception the everyday kerchief almost vies with neckwear in the range of offerings. It would seem to be a pity, therefore, to carp against this adventitious attribute of the apparel scheme when its presentation has been so judiciously and liberally made.

The clever, well dressed man will in the frequency of its handlings incident to its use get it upon exhibition often enough to warrant keeping it under cover when in the pocket.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Labrador's Good Luck.

QUEBEC, Oct. 21.—The well-known heavy gun manufacturers Krupp & Co., of Essen, have sent out an expert to Canada in the person of Mr. Roberts, an English engineer in the employ of the Austrian Government. His mission is to visit and inspect the iron mines of the wild coast of Labrador, to ascertain if enough metal for the Krupp manufactory can be procured. The manufactory consumes 500,000 tons a year. This iron is now obtained from Spain, costing the firm seventeen shillings a ton for transportation. If iron can be obtained in sufficient quantities from Labrador, the Krupps expect to save at least a shilling a ton on freight, as there will be no railroading of the metal, while the total economy looked for with the cheaper prices to be paid for the iron here, is some $725,000 a year. Mr. Roberts left town on the 17th on board a schooner bound for the Labrador coast, and expects to be absent for several weeks.

ROMANCE OF THE ROSE-BUDS.

"If you love me as much as you used to," she wrote
At the close of a poor little heart-broken note,
"Send me six rose-buds, pure and white,
Kissed by your lips before six to-night."

He read, and he laughed to himself to see
How fond and how foolish a woman can be;
But he stopped at the florist's. "I love her far more,
Yet how can I tell her so? Ah, yes, I know."

The rose-buds were bought, and the rose-buds were kissed;
Her street and her number and house were not missed.
She counted the buds with love's haste and love's grace—
Not six, but twice six, smiled up in her face.

White buds make white roses; they opened and died.
Again: "Do you love me as ever?" she sighed.
In rose-buds he answered her, kissed as before;
"Not six, nor twice six, but two dozen buds more."

And so, in this city of music and dance,
Two hearts have their own pretty rose-bud romance,
And when she grows sad through the long lonesome hours,
"Though absent, I love you," he whispers in flowers.

Ah! Love will have seasons of sadness and doubt,
So sure as the spring puts her tender buds out;
But Love will find language for questions and answers,
So long as the Rose lives the Queen of Romances.

—Pearl Rivers, in Harper's Bazar.

STORIES OF THE STAGE.

A Stranded Troupe and a Modern Good Samaritan.

"Don't you find it rather lonesome here?"

"O no!" answered the stage door-keeper. "Some of the actors generally come back here to smoke their pipes and chat."

"You must hear them tell some amusing experiences of stage life."

"Any number of them. The other night Wm. Harris, of Rhea's company, told me of an incident that happened when he was supporting Charlotte Cushman. They did 'Henry the Eighth' in a small place one night, and after the play was over the audience still remained in their seats. 'Henry the Eighth' is in five acts, but in Charlotte Cushman's version it ends with the death of Katharine, that scene closing the fourth act.

"Mr. Harris was playing Cardinal Woolsey and as he finished in the third act had time to change his dress before the performance was over. Seeing that the audience had no intention of leaving, Miss Cushman called to him:

"'Mr. Harris, you must go out and make an announcement; the audience do not know the play is finished.'

"The late Cardinal stepped before the curtain: 'Ladies and gentlemen—I am sorry to inform you the performance is over. The play concluded with the death of Queen Katharine. If you are waiting for the funeral, that will not take place until next week.'"

"I'll warrant he made a 'quick exit' after that. But tell me some of your own experiences, you were on the stage, were you not?"

"Yes—for one season."

"Then you must have a number of amusing reminiscences stored away in your hat."

The stage door-keeper shook his head. "No; nothing of a humorous nature took place that trip. We played in too hard luck. I tell you," he went on, earnestly, "that was the hardest four months I ever experienced, and is we hadn't struck one man with a heart in his body I don't know what would have become of us all."

"Who was he? How did it happen?"

"It was down in Richmond, Ind. We were to play there two nights—New Year's and the Saturday following. We had been playing to bad business ever since we started and came into the town on our trunks. New Year's night we thought would certainly bring us a big house, but it didn't. There was a local minstrel show in town, and we played to empty seats. The night following we played to four dollars. After the performance we held a consultation and decided to close and go to Cincinnati on our trunks. We could not pay our board bill and the landlord of the hotel threatened to attach our baggage. Sure enough, when we got up early Sunday morning and went down to the depot we found the trunks in charge of a sheriff. That effectually prevented our leaving town.

"There was nothing to do but go back to the hotel and wait until something turned up or the landlord turned us out. Back we went, and the manager tried to argue the matter with the proprietor, while the rest of us gathered around the stove in the office. The landlord was inflexible. Unless we could pay him his money he would hold our trunks. 'I run this hotel for money, not as a charitable institution, and I don't want you people around here any longer,' he exclaimed.

"At this moment a benevolent-looking old gentleman with long white whiskers entered the office. He was the landlord's father and part owner of the hotel.

"'What's the trouble?' he asked.

"His son explained.

"'Well, you people are in hard luck and I'm sorry for you,' said the old gentleman, kindly, 'but let's see what can be done.'

"We all felt grateful to him at once. He paused a moment to consider the situation, then asked: 'Have you had breakfast?'

"'No, sir.'

"The younger man had not permitted us to enter the dining-room that morning.

"'Then all of you go in and eat, and Charles (turning to his son), let them have the rooms they occupied last night.'

"Charles started to make some objections, but the kind-hearted old gentleman stopped him.

"'I'm not going to see these people turned into the street on this cold day; there's women and children among 'em and they stay here until to-morrow at least.'

"'But father,' the son persisted, 'they wont be any better off to-morrow and we'll have them on our hands.'

"'No matter! Besides, I'm going to do something for 'em right away. Now all of you go in and get breakfast and I'll be back shortly.'

"He was gone for three hours and when he came back he had a paper signed by the mayor and a dozen of the most influential citizens of the town, telling of our position and asking the people of Richmond to give us a benefit Monday night.

"'All the men whose names are on that paper,' he explained, 'are not going to do any thing to-morrow but sell tickets for you. We will get out some hand-bills in the morning and if hard work will fill the house, to-morrow night it will be packed.'

"He kept his word to the letter. The theater would not hold all the people that came, and a better disposed audience I never saw. They applauded every thing and everybody. After the fourth act our manager went before the curtain to make a speech, and before he finished half of the audience were in tears. Every word of thanks that he uttered came from his heart. He was a well-educated man, but he didn't try to use any big words. He simply told them how grateful he and every member of the company were to them all. We were crying back of the curtain, and when he spoke of the landlord's father we all cheered and the audience cheered with us. After the performance was over the audience crowded on the stage and we were kept busy shaking hands for the next hour. They felt they had done a good action and they fairly overflowed with kindly feeling toward us. The manager's wife had her little girl in her arms and all of the ladies kissed the child and the men tucked money into her hand. When the landlord's father came upon the stage she rushed up to him and made the child put its arms around his neck and kiss him and then she kissed him and everybody cheered. The splendid old fellow couldn't keep the tears back and he just stood there with the child in his arms and made a speech.

"'I tell you, neighbors,' he said, 'if you all feel as happy over what you have done for the people here as I do, you won't be ashamed of your tears. I have kept a good many show folks in my time and I know that they are just like other people. They have all got feelings, and every one of this troupe will remember this evening with gratitude as long as they live.'

"I don't believe such a scene ever took place on a stage before."

"Did you get away all right?" I asked.

"O, yes. The benevolent old gentleman took charge of the money for us, paid every thing we owed and we had enough left to buy us all tickets to our homes."

"He was a modern good Samaritan."

"He was that; for when we were leaving I heard him say to his son: 'Here, Charlie, put this money in the safe; it's them show folks' board for three days, thirty-six dollars. You see, my son, the old man knows a thing or two yet. If we had kept their trunks we wouldn't have got five dollars on the lot."

I put into my pocket the handkerchief with which I had vainly sought to check my tears during the pathetic recital.—Edward Weitzel, in Detroit Free Press.

Sold His Daughter.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—A beautiful Hebrew girl of 19, called at police headquarters yesterday and asked that a policeman accompany her home to secure her trunk. She said she was Lena Wasser. Three months ago she removed to Pittsburg with her family from Detroit, and about two weeks ago was married to Simon L. Davis Shopinsky, also from Detroit, but has not lived with him. She said she had no love for him, but her father had sold her to Shopinsky for $300, witdout her knowledge. She found out about the sale after the marriage. Shopinsky had paid $50 as soon as her consent to the marriage was obtained, and paid other $250 as the marriage ceremony was perfomed. She learned this by overhearing a heated conversation, in which the father demanded that the husband carry out his contract and pay up, before he would allow the girl to live with him. The girl said she wanted to leave Pittsburg and never look on either her father or husband again. Detective Motig accompanied her to her home, a three story brick building in which her father carries on cigar making, and made a demand for her trunk, which the father refused to give up, saying that his daughter's husband had some valuables in it which he considered himself responsible for. Shopinsky, the husband, appeared, however, and promptly gave his consent to his wife's taking possession of the trunk, also offering to give her everything he had in the world if she would only live with him, and try to learn to love him. She refused to listen to him, however, and left the house.

Canadian Meat for the Orient.

TORONTO, Oct. 29.—The Empire's Montreal correspondent says he learns that a serious movement is on foot to promote the export trade in dead meat from the Canadian Northwest Territories to China and Japan. Extensive refrigerators will be established at Vancouver, and at Shanghai, Yokohama and Hongkong, on the Asiastic coast, all of these being owned and controlled by the prospective company. It is understood the greater portion of the cattle required will be obtained from the ranchers of Alberta, and that killing will be done at Calgary or at some adjacent point of the Canadian Pacific line. The correspondent adds that he is informed the promoters have consulted cattle men in Montreal, and also the Canadian Pacific authorities, with regard to facilities for transporting, and they have received every encouragement from all concerned.

More German Horse-Killing.

MUNICH, Oct. 20.—The Bayerische Vaterland, edited by the noted anti-Prussian, Dr. Sigl, of this city, gives prominence to the details of the trial of a Vilshofen sportsman on the charge of cruelty in driving his horse. The sportsman in question had made a wager that he could drive from Wilshofen to Neuvetting and back, with a single horse, in the best time on record. The horse died of exhaustion before the journey was finished. The wager was lost, and the Bavarian police prosecuted the rider, securing his conviction and the imposition of a fine of 100 marks. Dr. Sigl, commenting upon the case, animadverts severely upon the contrast it affords to the action of the Emperor in decorating, rewarding and praising the men who rode in the long distance contest between Berlin and Vienna.

One of Those Fools.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 21.—Since Capt. J. W. Lawler left North Sydney, Cape Breton, on his voyage to Queentown, in his 12 foot, canvas, shoe-shaped craft, nothing has been heard of him. His friends have given him up as lost. His boat was not large enough to carry a supply of food sufficient to last three months. It is four months and fifteen days since he left Lincoln's wharf in this city on his voyage. Word was received from him by his wife in a letter dated North Sydney, July 20th, saying he had put in for repairs, but would soon resume his voyage. His wife, however, has the greatest faith in his ability as a sailor, and all that her friends and the newspapers have said cannot make her believe that he is dead. She clings to the hope that perhaps he has been picked up by some vessel bound for a distant port. If this were the first time he had started out on such a venture, she would give him up as dead, but this is his third voyage, the other two having been successful.
